Comments and Discussions my database application has some text box with one button behind it in file amule..., when i want to copy some text from database to textbox with button behind it and press button then it's show an error that which button should be at top of field like button1, button2.....,but my application should be display me an error at first that tell that you should put this and that buttons at top of fields,,means it should show me an error like this "To copy some text to textbox with button behind it and press button then it's show an error" some problem in software? i have a problem that i have created an application which have a textbox and a button.I have some data inserted in database.Now when i copy the data from database to textbox and press button it shows "database is null" error. Thanks for the feedback. The problem turned out to be that the JavaScript needed to listen to the "onpaste" event in Internet Explorer not being applied or not being "correctly" applied (for some reason). I'm not sure why. I had to set the onpaste event on a button and fire a function in JavaScript that did something to the clipboard object. It took some testing to figure it out.
