U.S. National Team opens campaign vs. Cuba August 16, 2012|Reuters RAPID CITY, S.D. Not even a week into his first training camp with the United States men's national team, Kyle Beckerman has already come up against a part of the program that isn't easy: the tropical, nonstop schedule. After 12 years of consistently playing games against European opponents, the San Francisco midfielder spent the past week poring over a four-page document called "practices and games" to make sure he knew what was expected of him come Tuesday against Cuba, the first of what will be 18 matches over 10 days for the team. The preparation is about more than knowing what day and time it is; it's also about finding the right balance of practice and game. "It's a lot of legwork, but at the same time I know going into this camp the work that I did this summer, I'm in a good place," Beckerman said after Monday's morning session. "You just have to make sure you don't do too much and get too out of shape. You've just got to focus on making sure you keep up the intensity." With the U.S. hosting a team of top domestic players like Columbus Crew midfielder Wil Trapp and Washington's Jozy Altidore, who the Americans will also play in the Aug. 19 CONCACAF Gold Cup title match, there is a different feel for every camp. The players are on a different level and have different attitudes, from the dour-faced Trapp, who played the past two years for the Crew, to Altidore, who is brimming with excitement at the prospect of getting back on a major stage like the Gold Cup. The camp's first game against Cuba is also one of the most inviting in recent history, with the event taking place in the brand new PPL Park, the home of the Philadelphia Flyers. The U.S. traditionally opposes Cuba only in exhibition games, but the Americans will face the island nation in its 2013 Gold Cup qualifying and then-2014 World Cup qualifying match. So for the first week, Beckerman will get a head start on his much anticipated rematch with Altidore, who leads the current scoring race with five goals. Beckerman's rivalry with Altidore dates back to when the two played together at Arsenal, when Altidore was just finishing his rookie season in England
