It assists you to mod, change, rename. windows for playing games vista buttons crack.rar. vista buttons crack.rarQ: How can I use the GIT revision number in my bash script? I have a script which reads the project's GIT url and submits it for building. GIT=gitservr GIT_URL= $GIT clone --depth 1 $GIT_URL This is working correctly. Now I have to differentiate between the commits in order to find out which commit is currently used for building. The problem is I don't know how to do that. My guess is to find the revision number in the URL and somehow use it or the URL itself. Is there a way to do this in my script or shall I create some external script (like an IDE) to find the revision number? Thanks A: You can use rev-parse -s to get the sha: rev="$(rev-parse -s '$GIT_URL')" if rev == 'master' then do stuff else do other stuff fi James May (actor)
