Q: Dynamically adjusting the height of a ScrollView I have an activity with a ScrollView, my view contains a RecyclerView with 2 items. On 2 different screens in the app (models) I want the ScrollView to shrink / grow as I navigate between these 2 screens. The first screen has a RecyclerView of height 400dp. When I move to the next screen which has a RecyclerView of height 200dp, I would like to be able to scroll in both cases. My problem is that the ScrollView for the second screen is already at the screen height, I need to be able to shrink / grow it to match the other screen height. I was looking to find a way to have a layout like this: // top row // bottom row // top row // bottom row The problem is that I cannot create Views dynamically. I tried using a variable ViewGroup and set it as a child of a ScrollView, but it doesn't seem to work as I cannot scroll in that case. A: Solved it by defining a constant which I use to create my main LinearLayout and that gets passed to my View 3e33713323
