Using Photoshop CS4 for Retouching for Mixed Media You can use Photoshop CS4 to retouch photographs that have been scanned or taken on a DSLR to add a greater depth of color and detail. LANSING — Gov. Gretchen Whitmer signed a $2.3 billion spending bill Friday afternoon that restores $17 million in funding for the State Fair and will keep a farmer-owned pumpkin patch and other attractions at the fair open. The spending bill adds $17 million to the $15 million the Michigan State Fairgrounds received through a previous $58 million general fund bill to restore $40 million in operating funds for the fair, which closed in June. The money is a key part of a six-year lease agreement between the Michigan Department of Treasury and the fairgrounds landowner, State Fair Enterprises, but the company is awaiting a decision on the restoration of the funds. SFE, one of the state's largest landowners, has blamed a government-mandated arbitration process for the delays, which will prevent the fairgrounds from reopening anytime soon, even if the restoration is approved. State Fair spokesman Charles V. Bloch says the fair has been prevented from opening since June 30 because the state has not made its final funding payment. "The state is allowing them to continue under this lease, which means that they're getting the fairgrounds free and clear, but they're not making the final funding payment to maintain the existing facilities for the fair," Bloch said. "If this issue is resolved, we're hoping (the state's) final payment can be made and (the state's) would be able to pay for it to reopen the fairgrounds," Bloch said. What happens is up in the air. Whitmer has said she's open to reopening the fairgrounds but wants to be sure government money is used to keep the park open. The governor's office did not say if that would prevent the proposed $17 million restoration funding from going through. "We're ready to open, but we want to be sure that it's reopened with a sound, successful business case," Whitmer said last week. "So that's not an easy thing to do." Bloch said the fairgrounds will only reopen when the restoration is approved and the state's final funding payment is made. "Any dollar of support that is provided to SFE is going to be through a lease arrangement," Bloch said. "If a lease deal is done, then we hope that a state payment will come down. That's what would happen in any lease." SFE is also still waiting on a decision from the U.S.

Q: Advanced Google Maps API v3 - JSON / PHP I'm trying to code an application for my web page that uses Google Maps API v3. I want the application to connect to the Google servers, get some data and then display it in a table. I believe the issue comes at the response - I don't know how to work with the php code that returns JSON. How can I display this data in a table? Is it easier for you to see the raw PHP code below? PHP foreach($rows as $row) { //print($row->id); //print($row->name); foreach($row->data as $each) { //$id = htmlspecialchars($each->id); //$name = htmlspecialchars($each->name); //$phone = htmlspecialchars($each->phone); //$street = htmlspecialchars($each->street); //$city = htmlspecialchars($each->city); //$country = htmlspecialchars($each->country); if(isset($each->id)) { //$id = htmlspecialchars($each->id); $id = htmlspecialchars($each->id); } else { $id = htmlspecialchars(strval($each->id)); }
