What it is: A hand-animated, "slow-motion" feature for 2D and 3D games.How to use it: The feature is built into the graphic compositing system in Adobe After Effects. It's similar to the `slowmo' feature in Premiere Pro, so we.Many technologies allow for recordation of audio and video content, but, from a viewer's perspective, most technologies that allow for recordation fail to duplicate the social context of the viewing experience. For example, when attending a concert, listening to a song on a record, music radio, or an album is a much more personal and immersive experience than listening to the same song on a digital platform, such as a smartphone, computer, or TV. In addition, the social context, or context of the people watching, creates a social feel to the viewing experience that was often missing on a digital platform. For example, as a viewer, when watching a sporting event in a sports bar, party, or a concert, you are often surrounded by a group of people with similar interests, a social context that cannot be replicated when viewing content on a digital platform.What do you need to be a successful entrepreneur? While most of us would probably take that answer to be a lot of money, skills, and knowledge, the answer is actually a lot simpler – what you need is something we as a society are increasingly unwilling to acknowledge or perhaps even value: resilience. In the next few weeks, we are going to talk about three principals on entrepreneurship that can help you become more resilient as an entrepreneur. Principle #1: Do something that you love, something that excites you. The first principle is "do something that you love, something that excites you." This is a principle that I've been living by for a long time and something I see many entrepreneurs struggle with. When I started my first business, I did something I love, a business that I felt passionate about. It was not an easy path to success, but it sure was a lot of fun. What is the difference between you and me? Why do so many of us get distracted so easily? Our society is so focused on what everyone else is doing, and how we should be doing it, that we lose sight of what we are passionate about. Entrepreneurs are people who forget that is what they are passionate about, because we are distracted by the competition. When you are putting yourself out
