If one is to take the FA's pre-final stance on the "more people than ever before" aspect of the day seriously, one would have to suggest the emergence of something called the "petrolhead" to be of obvious interest. Michael Owen is apparently being lined up to take on Brian Deane, the engine buff from Manchester, in a charity Moto-X race at the FA Cup final. We mustn't forget those two outstanding examples of the true motorhead's contribution to society; the East London-based soft-top restorer and the west London chip-shop owner.
