function selected(array) { var index = -1, length = array == null? 0 : array.length; while (++index The young Man The young Man is a novel written by Rudyard Kipling and published in 1891. It is his fourth book. The novel is a story of an Englishman who wants to be a Pakistani Moulana. As a result he is denounced for being a thief and blackguard, and consequently flees to India, where he finds a young Indian girl and settles with her. The story, set in late nineteenth-century England, takes place in a countryside still recovering from the Industrial Revolution. Upon the death of a wealthy landowner, a stranger appears—a young man—who has been raised in England but is in fact an Indian-born Islamic scholar and religious scholar named Moulana. The novel explores the protagonist's thoughts and doubts regarding his religious identity, and his eventual decision to take the Moulana's course of life. Plot The novelist, employed to travel to a remote country estate in the English countryside, takes a train to the same destination, where, upon arrival, he 3e33713323
