In the prior art piston rings which are used in internal combustion engines, a ring-shaped material obtained by sintering cast iron or a silicon nitride ceramic material is used as a hard material. These prior art piston rings are formed into desired ring shape by mechanical processing and have an opening portion on one side of the ring-shaped piston ring material. The hard material in the hard material layer around the opening portion of these prior art piston rings, which is formed of a sintered ceramic material, is chipped off from the formed material as the piston ring is subjected to sliding movement. Consequently, the sliding durability of the piston rings is reduced. With the recent increase of automobile mileage, the amount of exhaust gas emitted into atmosphere is on the increase. As a result, efforts have been made to reduce the amount of exhaust gas. Under the circumstances, it has become necessary to further improve the sliding durability of the piston 6a5afdab4c

Filler is a program for filling out forms and submitting them to Windows applications. Use FormDocs Filler to create fillable PDF forms in minutes without writing a single line of code. The program generates both editable and printable files that are fillable. Just load a blank form from your database, edit it as needed, and click the generate button. Your forms are now ready for you to print or send as needed. Numerous form fields can be filled In addition to creating new, fillable forms using a database, you can fill existing forms using a database. The program generates editable and printable files that contain any number of form fields. Use the form fields to capture data from end users and convert the data directly to database records. Configure as many fields as you need You can configure a database form to contain any number of editable and printable form fields. For example, instead of creating a data template using a form, you can create a data template with as many fields as you need. Save the template in your database and use it as many times as you need. You can edit the template and create a new instance of it anytime you need. You can edit the form fields you wish to appear in the template. Use the position and order of form fields to customize your form in any way you wish. You can drag form fields around, rearrange them, and create fields with multiple choices. Save your form template as a database If you ever need to edit a fillable form in the future, you can save the form template as a database using the export command. This makes the form a tabular database where you can use SQL queries. You can then manually edit the tabular database, add new tables or fields, and then use the export command to refresh the form template.
