High speed: Daahri from Lahore to London in 83 min. The good thing about these networks is that they can be operated in a cheap manner in comparison to the others, such as cable or mobile phone networks. This means that you would be able to reach your destination at a cheap cost. They may be known for their low prices, but the services they offer are very limited. Therefore you will be forced to pay for certain services, such as the data connection. There are some disadvantages to this type of network, and the most obvious is that you do not have control over the quality of your service. It is therefore important to check if this will impact you in any way as you will be relying on their service. One other thing to consider is that these networks may not be able to provide you with the latest mobile applications because you are using an older version of the hardware. There is another problem that you may encounter, this is the fee that is charged for the different services that you use. They can easily ask for a fee for things such as data, calls or emails. Therefore you need to be careful when using a network that is too cheap, as you may need to change your lifestyle in some way to fit within the network's expectations. It may be cheaper to use these types of networks, but there are some things you need to be aware of before using them.
