Q: Firebase Android unable to access data from other activities I'm trying to make a code that allow me to access the data of the database from other activity but it seems like I'm having trouble with getting the current data that's being rendered in a database from my activity. So far, this is what I have done: My main activity: public class MenuActivity extends AppCompatActivity { DatabaseReference menuRef; String menuId = null; @Override protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); setContentView(R.layout.activity_menu); menuRef = FirebaseDatabase.getInstance().getReference().child("MenuId").child(menuId); menuId = getIntent().getExtras().getString("MenuId"); menuRef.addValueEventListener(new ValueEventListener() { @Override public void onDataChange(DataSnapshot dataSnapshot) { menuId = menuId + "Admin"; } @Override public void onCancelled(DatabaseError databaseError) { } }); } } Then, when I run that activity, I get this error: FATAL EXCEPTION: main Process: com.example.office.jepro2, PID: 21701 java.lang.RuntimeException: Unable to start activity ComponentInfo{com.example.office.jepro2/com.example.office.jepro2.MainActivity}: java.lang.NullPointerException: Attempt to invoke virtual method 'void com.google.firebase.database.DatabaseReference.setValue(java.lang.String, java.lang.Object)' on a null object reference

This week's release of Ubuntu 17.10 brought us another, short-lived, version of the platform's return to GNOME. "Ubuntu 17.10 has a very good feature for Ubuntu fans because this version brings the Unity desktop environment back," he said. "Until now, Ubuntu has been using the popular GNOME desktop environment, but Ubuntu 17.10 takes away the Unity and gives fans of the GNOME desktop a preview of the future," he added. Both Ubuntu Linux and Fedora now run on Linux 3.10, the latest version of the Linux kernel, released in July last year. The new version uses a version of the GNOME desktop that's designed to work better on smaller screens. The new version also offers live patches for critical vulnerabilities in applications, which can be
