AutoCAD

A brief history of AutoCAD from Autodesk: May 1982
AutoCAD 1.0 was the first release of AutoCAD and its first edition was available for public beta testing in the first half of 1982. These first releases were stand-alone programs. September 1982 For the first time the company offered a multi-user, database-driven version of AutoCAD. It was called AutoCAD Dbase, which included the CAD program and a database used to manage the design files, drawing objects, and other AutoCAD related data. April 1983 AutoCAD 2.0 included more user-friendly features. It provided a new "Zoom-to-Point" drawing mode and improved documentation and CAD data management.

September 1983 AutoCAD 2.5 introduced the revolutionary "Boolean" solid modeling feature and the "Block" tool.

AutoCAD 2.5 also introduced improved documentation, a structured drawing language, and a drawing database.

AutoCAD 2.5 was the first release to feature incremental upgrades of CAD drawing features. April 1984 AutoCAD 2.6 introduced the block toolbar, the screen capture tool, macros, and a color picker. July 1984 AutoCAD 2.8 introduced the ability to view and manipulate CAD data in a web browser. July 1985 AutoCAD 2.9 introduced the "Extend/Contract" command, a feature that allowed users to create on-the-fly furniture designs. March 1986 AutoCAD

2.9d introduced the ability to quickly create solids and composite surfaces. April 1987 AutoCAD 2.10 introduced the ability to control surface colors with the "Color" command. December 1987 AutoCAD 3.0 was released with better text editing, the ability to work with existing data, and a feature-rich drawing environment. January 1989 AutoCAD 3.2 introduced the ability to see a 3-D view of CAD data. March 1989 AutoCAD 3.2c introduced the "Text/MText" command and the ability to import bitmap data into AutoCAD. September 1990 AutoCAD 3.2d introduced the new "Linetype" command and the ability to plot line objects. April 1991 AutoCAD 3.3 introduced the "Transition Edge" command. November 1991 AutoCAD 3.5 introduced the "Billboard" command
