In general, there is always a problem with people not using the tools available to them. The people who had the most contact with the computer in general, are the ones who find the most use in the internet. So, if you have such people in your house, they will find the most use in the software. The computer will act like a secretary for your doctor. You can create multiple records regarding all of your patients. Each record will have a patient name, doctor name, address, the reason for the visit, and doctor signature. The doctor will also be able to fill a medical history section that will include general information like allergies, other illnesses, cancer, and history of surgeries. The doctor will receive a copy of the record via email, and can share the record with another doctor by providing him/her the patient's name and related information. There are several ways to use the software. Some of them will be explained here. There is a help button on the toolbar that will take you to online help. Sometimes you may need to restart the software for the changes to take effect. When you start using the software, it will ask you to enter your new patient's name. You will enter the name, address, and phone number. Make sure you know the doctor's name that you want to use. Once the patient name is entered, click on the button. You will find the following options available. Click on "New Patient" and enter the basic medical history. You will find information like Age, Diet, Weight, Family History, Heart Disease, Cancer, Pregnancy, Pain, Allergies, and more. Before each visit, you will need to click on the "New Record" button. Fill in the symptoms, and click on "OK". Your doctor's signature is the last step. After you have entered the important information regarding each visit, click on "New Patient" and create the next record. You will do the same thing, and make sure to add the relevant information. When you have finished entering information, click on the "Add to File" button. This will take you to the files view where you can save the medical record to a file. The software also has a basic calculator, where you can enter medications and their side effects, calculate dosages, as well as find out the generic name of medication. The last button available is the "Report b7e8fdf5c8
