If so please help me find it. I've tried the following: MZTV Â®, BTjunkie.com, isoHunt.to, H33t TV, The Pirate Bay, NowFree and I've used an online "solutions" site. They've pretty much all confirmed they are not really "free" sites and they will most definitely track you. I'm currently using uTorrent and I'd prefer to use an actual client instead of something with video streaming built in. A: Follow the official instructions from The Pirate Bay. After downloading the torrent, open the torrent file in the client you prefer. It should be marked as private torrent, where you can change the label settings. In the preferences dialog, tick "private torrent" and add a short label to it. If you want to try some of our clients (in other words, if you have problems with using the official client), you can try one of the following clients, which are all free and open source: Azureus. BitTorrentLite. Couscous. KTorrent. Transmission. uTorrent. You can download them all from the official The Pirate Bay website. There's more info and links to download clients at the FAQ on the torrent site. A: There are actually two free and open source solutions for torrents already. One of them is Azureus, which is one of the most popular BitTorrent clients. If you ever used the Windows version, you know what this thing is like. In this version it is possible to use both, public and private torrents. Another option is Transmission, which is a good and easy-to-use client. If you are running Linux, you can use Deluge. And if you want to use a Web-client, you can use Wupload or e79caf774b
