if the script is in a file, how to make it executable? A: Based on the link you provided, I suggest the following. The following will wrap your script in an executable file. from

distutils.core import setup import

distutils.command.install

setup(name='my_script', version=0.1, description='my
script description',

packages=['subscriptions'],

package_data={'subscriptions':
['data/file.txt']}) import os, sys,

subprocess script = """

Answer: No, not currently.

They are working on an upcoming update that will probably be an incremental update that will improve their existing features. Don't worry about it, it's not a big issue.Q: How to get file size as variable in batch script? I need to know the size of a file as a variable, so I can pass that variable to another windows command.

How do I do this? I've tried getting the size of the file like so (these are just made up names): SET FILE_SIZE= FOR %%a IN (%*) DO (SET FILE_SIZE=%%a)

The problem here is that when I run the script, the %FILE_SIZE% doesn't equal the file size in bytes. Any help would be appreciated. A: IF you have the SYSTEM variable then you can use this: set

"SIZE=%SYSTEM:~1%bytes"

you can then replace the value of "SIZE" in your script with this: set

The SYSTEM environment variable is a good choice since it is a standard variable. If you don't have the SYSTEM variable then you have to use for /f, as with the other solutions given.

Edit: To determine the size of a file from an input parameter, use this: set "SIZE=0" FOR /F

"delims=" %%a IN ('ECHO
%1') DO SET /A "SIZE=%%a"

Edit 2: From your comment, it sounds like what you want is to change the file size with some form of loop. A simple one-liner:

This will use the variable value as the loop iteration. A better, possibly more efficient approach would be to use the SETLOCAL

EnableDelayedExpansion flag. This allows you to write code like this:

The ! variable is expanded when the loop executes and you can use it to set the value of your loop variable, e.g., as in the above example. If you want to try a more complex solution, you can use the SET /A command to loop over a range. See
