“A powerfully immersive fantasy world created by the brilliant minds of our talented development team,” reads the official website for Tarnished. “This virtual world has an impressive and unexpected design. It is full of a variety of dungeons and levels, and the stories told by the characters and their sides are subtly expressed.” When interacting with the girls and men who reside in the world, you can change their actions or affect the course of the narrative as an unexpected protagonist. According to the developer, “Not only will your story change depending on the decisions you make, but you will also encounter new life-forms and gain new skills. The story will continuously evolve as you change and experience the world.” While the story progresses, you will have to participate in the card battle system “Card Gauntlet.” Players can choose their cards and form a combination that plays a role in the story. As for Card Gauntlet, “The players will participate in real time. The results are submitted to the server, and the game will be timed.” This game is available now in the Google Play Store! — [Play now]

The FOOD podcast network is excited to announce the release of the dev diary for Episode 5! The full episode will be available for all viewers this Thursday, January 25th at 4PM Pacific/7PM Eastern. In this episode, we'll look into the process of creating food for the player, and show how it relates to the diet of the characters. At the same time, we'll also consider the possibilities for different food types for each of the playable classes. In our last episode, we talked about the fact that nutrition plays an important role in the establishment of the character. I think it's no exaggeration to say that a change in diet can lead to a few player skill upgrades. In this episode, we'll talk about food types and discuss how to implement those. We'll also talk a bit more about the characters' strengths and weaknesses as compared to each other. We'll end this episode with a few words about future development of the game and new features we
