This new HyperMotion engine allows the game to use a player's true movement patterns and actions over time to more intelligently simulate the movement of the real-life player. It also provides a more authentic feeling of player control and movement over a wider area of the field. This is implemented in different ways throughout the game. Players make more effective movements through tighter turns and faster, more realistic finishes at the goal. Players will also feel more connected to the ball with improved handling and more realistic ball rolls and bounces. In FIFA 22, the ball can be controlled manually with a full range of movement options to more intuitively connect with the ball and make skilled off-the-ball movement decisions. This is combined with match engine improvements which make the ball feel fitter, more responsive and clearly connected to the movement and actions of a player. Ball intelligence also develops to encourage on-the-ball ball work and the use of the creative skills of a player. "This year we are introducing a new game engine, which allows us to spend more time and attention on improving player movement and improving the overall feeling of the game," said Oliver Bierhoff, Senior Producer. "In previous games, we've delivered a more natural feeling of how real footballers move and play. But we didn't always connect with them in the same way. Our new human performance engine allows us to deliver more accurate player movements, which feels more connected and true to the player, and provides a more intuitive connection with the ball. We are constantly looking to improve the feeling of the gameplay and the connection to the player in FIFA, and that will be a focus in FIFA 22." Goalkeepers will find new ways to control the game with new training drills and tactics to improve their game. Goalkeepers will also receive additional training feedback to better understand their relationship with the ball and their shots on goal. In the defense department, defenders will be equipped with new options and training drills to make them more tactically aware in game and on the training pitch. To create more positional awareness, defenders will see new positioning indicators that will encourage them to position themselves closer to the ball and out of the way of danger. Additionally, defenders will be equipped with new tackling and defensive training drills to learn when and where to position themselves defensively. Attackers will be able to roam more freely through the midfield to find more space and create more space for teammates and

This year's iteration of the game brings a host of gameplay innovations to the series, including the ability to purchase, sell, trade and loan players, a new Keeper Mode, Club Management and radically-changed gameplay in online matchmaking. FIFA delivers an unrivalled authenticity by teaming up with Adidas to provide players with a range of official match and training wear. This partnership delivers unprecedented accuracy to the game and means that players are beautifully equipped to face the toughest challenges. Innovative gameplay innovations EA SPORTS™ FIFA 2022 brings several innovative features to the series, including: * Dynamic Tactical Formation: Games are now more tactically-focused, requiring players to pick the right formation in any given scenario. When in possession, players can instruct their teammates to move into a position on the pitch that suits their respective abilities, in order to create a favourable tactical situation. * Keeper Mode: A new improved Keeper Mode offers new difficulty levels for players to enjoy a more realistic and challenging online experience. Being constantly surrounded by threats, the goalkeeper has to produce precise saves and react to situations quickly. * Dominant Races: Teams receive more coins for victories in online matches. This has been adapted to the new Transfer Matchmaking system, which brings a mix of your club's strength and your opponents strength together, giving you better rewards if you win. * Ultimate Team: EA SPORTS FIFA 2022 brings Ultimate Team to its biggest ever iteration and completely revamps its gameplay so that it is more accessible and rewarding. Football Club management: An improved online matchmaking With a new more-realistic online matchmaking, and new conditional FIFA Ultimate Team Points that can be earned during online matches, a challenge mode has been added which improves the artificial intelligence of the game's football club management. Players can win lucrative rewards for their clubs, by making shrewd signings and with a new Score Attack mode, FIFA delivers a more-challenging online experience and a much longer online season than ever before. New and returning gameplay features New additions include a brand new attacking AI that is incredibly detailed in its behaviour, revolutionary new player intelligence, enhanced ball and player animations, a new animation-based damage system for in-game injuries, new player tracking, the ability to trade and transfer players, improved volumetric futsal dribbling, bc9d6d6daa
