The kittens are navigating through a level towards the platform at the end where their mother is waiting to eat them. Your objective is to keep the kittens from reaching the platform until they receive enough food. It's a simple game with just two possible actions: 1 - Click on a cat to add it to your inventory. 2 - Click on a food resource to feed the cat or kitten. There is a pause feature to help you focus and an undo button if you make a mistake. It is optimized to be played with mouse and cursor keys. Enjoy! I made a game in p5.js and after successfully and patiently teaching the game to my five year old daughter, she decided to stop playing the game. My question is: what should I do differently to get her to play again? Ever wanted to explore a new, magical world through a gorgeous, all-new story? In 'Frozen Village', you take the role of a courageous hero on a quest to defend a tiny town. Your goal is to collect enough crystals to build a runestone, which will have magical powers. With a hazy light at the end of the tunnel, you begin your journey and continue through dazzling winter scenery. I hope to share my story with you as you're playing your way through a beautiful kingdom, where snowflakes fall silently and the wind blows through the trees. Let's sing a song of praise together! Note: This is a "Classic iPad" adaptation of 'Frozen Village' with a new interface. You can find 'Frozen Village' right here: I made a game in the chaps and it was super fun working on it. But then I realized I didnt like how the game was coming out, so I spent almost 3 months trying to fix the bugs. Now there is a new iteration with a new interface, but also new warts. I was wondering if anyone could take a look at it. -- Some more ideas of things I would like to add: 1. A way to unlock animations without the use of buttons or movements. 2. Landmarks that make the game experience more interactive 3. More moving parts in the environment Hey @CX8R1M3,

Summer camp starts over, that means new playtest sessions, more updates, new episodes! Some of you might be getting anxious waiting for the December update to be done. Look, we won't promise it's gonna be finished before then, but we might get it out by early next year. We're still taking feedback, looking into the new balance changes, so wait and see! It's not like this is the last update we'll be doing, though! We have a few new things planned for the future, namely new systems, including a brand-new skill tree and the first real long playtime expansion to the game. Stay tuned! Also, here is the free version of our new license plate model. It is a free component of our interactive and animated custom license plate system. You can use it to have your license plate pop up in game to give you more details about your license plate. (...or you could just use a one-time-use code instead of the license plate model if you would like) Feedback is helpful and all, but if you would rather contribute via issues on our github, thanks for helping us improve our game. :) This update is huge! We have re-written a lot of content, updated more models, improved the performance, integrated new art, audio and music assets, and many many more improvements and fixes. We have highlighted all the improvements in this post, but we encourage you to read the whole post for more details. This update is HUGE! US Content Rating: Legal Bulletins and Reports * Don't want your player to use this, or any other, cheats/hacks for any reason? We understand! That's why we made this trainer, which is completely client-side (no internet connection is required). We also made it compatible with the latest version of the game: Far Cry 5. What does it do? This trainer adds a Super Charge icon in the bottom-right corner of your screen that can be used to upgrade your enemies with bigger and stronger hits. You'll have to wait a bit before your enemies become too strong, as you won't be able to use this cheat/hack while you're in battle, so keep that in mind. After you use this trainer's cheat/hack, your enemies' stats will be reset. That means that your enemies' regular attacks (hitting them with a melee weapon, launching a grenade at them, etc.) will still work, but not their super charge. Their Super Charge attack will also stop working, even if you don't hit it. The only way to use this cheat/hack is to have it downloaded to your device before you start the game. However, it will not be enabled at the start of the game. It will be enabled later, in-game. You'll be prompted to do so when you come across enemies with Super Charge icons on their HUD. You can use it whenever you want,
