Hit the road and run like the wind in this frantic high-speed buggy game! Race, ram, blast and blast your way through crazy bullets and enemies! Use your steam gun to blast holes in the road and destroy them to score more points. Use upgradeable upgrades like bigger guns, better weapons and shield boosts to customize your buggy for the race! Drive, press, power, overtake and compete to become the new "La Resistance" champion!Q: 'NSInvalidArgumentException', reason: 'Can't embed UIKit in my app' I'm running an app on the simulator that has a lot of UIKit functionality. I try to run it on my iPhone and it works perfectly fine. After I delete the simulator and try to run it again, it shows up the following error: "Can't embed UIKit in my app" I try to fix it for a long time and I'm very sure that it works fine on my simulator. As the error is very descriptive, I'm gonna post the whole log: The error I get when I try to run my app on my iPhone A: This line of code: [[UIApplication sharedApplication] setStatusBarStyle:UIStatusBarStyleLightContent]; Is part of the QuartzCore framework, which is still in the store. If you were to place in the code you're currently using, QuartzCore would be pulled down as a dependency for that image, crashing the app. You can try temporarily undoing changes made in Xcode to see if it fixes it. If it does, I'd recommend looking for a project on a computer with a newer version of Xcode (4.3.2) installed, and check if it also crashes there. If you can't find the issue with that, it may be you're simply running an app with too much history. After you're finished with a version, check your 'Derived data' by going to 'Organizer' and press the 'Reset Content and Settings' button. Then see if you can run the version you're working on. These images, from the Norman Foster-designed Metropolitan Cable Car, are a fun and relatively easy ride down memory lane. I was surprised by how much I enjoyed the video and enjoyed seeing what the street looked like in the 1950s, pre-boulevards and mid-century apartments. Check out

682.88 GBANJEESEEDTKBARTHappy Birthday Honeymoons! I am guessing many readers here are in the midst of planning their honeymoon. Why not plan a great honeymoon with a specialist honeymoon financing company. www.gwbi.com Great Britain is a great place to get great rates, AUS does not have this advantage. Many honeymooners book to UK and later proceed to Australia for their honeymoon. They wonder why they get stingy for honeymoon in Australia. The reason is we are saving money for our children and grandchildren who do not even have skeletons yet. GwB Honeymoon Finance.com represents our international and network partners so there are many honeymoon financing solutions. For the Aussies honeymooners a great deal of your honeymoon could be paid for upfront. Now the catch is that you need to do your homework before you go. This is a type of finance arrangement where you bring money to Australia with you and transfer it

Free? We all know games are expensive. However, in many cases, people don't want to pay for games, when they can get the same thing for free. Furthermore, we believe free allows for more people to play the game and try it out. We've intentionally made this an ad-supported app, and we're sorry for the inconvenience. Time is of the essence as you aim to avoid the moving snowballs. It can only be played using Samsung Gear VR or Google Cardboard.1) You're standing on a chair in the middle of a street.2) Go to the garage & grab the toy gun.3) Watch out for the moving snowballs.4) Shoot down all the snowballs with a single shot.1) Move forward, & shoot down the snowballs.2) Collect the stars & remain alive to complete the level.You will need to get the toy gun ready everytime before you step into the street. How you can set your gun properly? You can select "crouch" or "lifted" while you have your head inside the VR-headset.1) Before stepping into the street, put your gun down, & check if there's anything on your ears, nose, lips, & fingers.2) If you can hear the ringing, or if you see a red indicator on your gun, put your gun up to the nose & continue to play.3) If it's too cold, you'll be sweating a lot. Put your gun back. It may be uncomfortable if it's freezing.1) On the contrary, put your gun down & keep your head down.2) The VR-headset gets cooler as you walk forward. If it gets too hot, you can play on the nearby staircase.3) Keep your eyes on the sky. You can spot the moving snowballs while the VR-headset is active. If it rains, you will need to put your gun back.4) It's worth it to prepare your earplugs before playing. Put them in your ears if you feel too cold.5) Keep your eye on the sky. Remember there's a snowstorm!6) You will need to be more cautious &

I was able to freely make changes to it with no problems, and I wasn't allowed to accept any of the credit. So, why is the website being linked to this article about me? Is it because I was allowed to make tons of changes, but I had to release the file so I could use it? I've never been disappointed before, I've never felt like I had no control over a website or not having anything to do with something. I've also never felt so proud of something I've worked so hard on, and no one has said 'oh my, that's wonderful!' before? Was I so excited over this that I was and am still inspired and motivated to make more of my own websites and get even more involved in the Furry community?
