A redox-initiated thiol-ene reaction using thiourea-capped polyisocyanide macroinitiator and 2-ethynyl-1-octyne was developed for the fabrication of alkyne-doped polyurethane microgel fibers. The alkyne-doped polyurethane microgel fibers, whose size and aspect ratio could be controlled via the ratio of the hydroxyl moieties, containing 0.5 mol% mercaptan, were fabricated by irradiating the aqueous solution of alkyne-doped polyurethane microgels and mercaptan in nitrogen atmosphere for 30 min using a UV light irradiation system. The average molecular weight of the alkyne-doped polyurethane microgel fibers was calculated to be around 19-29 kDa, which is in good agreement with the molecular weight measured by the GPC measurement. In addition, the alkyne-doped polyurethane microgel fibers with the diameter between 100 and 500 nm showed the higher tensile strength compared to those of the pristine polyurethane microgel fibers.Q: How to show 4 box instead of 1 on mobile in twitter card I am using twitter card on my website and some twitter rules are like this:- when

What's new:

Neon Slashers (originally known as Edgemont Murders) is a 2002 B-horror film written and directed by Peter Spierig and Walter Hill and starring Robert Rusler, Rebecca Gayheart, Tom Arnold and Robert Englund. Like Hill's other 1990s films The Warriors, The Long Riders and Point Break, the storyline follows a group of cool and cocky college students, a pair of serial killers, a couple of incompetent cops and a high school nerd who gets up to no good with an insane sidekick. Plot The story centers around Shane Van Loke (Robert Rusler), a beautiful college dropout, naive smart aleck, and hopeless drug addict, who gets involved in a series of murders dating back to the 1980s. After taking Shane in, Marcie, a sweet and hard-working girl, the family matriarch - understanding and caring but lacking the hope Shane has lost - follows Shane around as a "fixer" so Shane's massive meth habit can be supplied; Shane, however, sees Marcie as interference and a hindrance in his slacker lifestyle (he's a sex fiend who gets his kicks snorting blow.) Many years before, Shane's father (Tom Arnold), a high-ranking police detective, was investigating a series of gruesome murders with his partner, Captain Lockdown (Don Asheton). Apparently, a serial killer named Vinnie O'Flagshot (Robert Englund) was forcing the partners to work together in an attempt to lure them into a trap after the last, Willie, invited him over for breakfast while his wife (Jessica Walter) was out of town. However, Lockdown was secretly under the impression that Detective Papa John Capone (Lynn-Holly Johnson) was the serial killer, when he was actually looking for the cop he hated most (the only reason he let Willie live at all), who in turn was playing a game of cat and mouse with Lockdown. Eventually, Lockdown's and Papa John's arcs converge at the Marie Antoinette Co-op housing project (an homage to The Warriors) where many of the murders happened and Willie's dead body was found (donated to science) along with those of hundreds of homeless people in "hallowed ground", a common phrase for cemeteries that would be later used in the film. While Lockdown and Papa John struggle over who is the perpetrator, Shane joins their investigation in an attempt to uncover the truth.
