Using Quantum Switch's benchmark mode to keep us honest, STOORM delivers a 2.60fps framerate on smooth modern systems, with the older AGEOD engine providing a much lower framerate on lower-end systems. However, what can you expect from any game that was released back in 1999? One of the first things I find when playing STOORM is that there are quite a few control issues. This is something games have been dealing with for years, but STOORM takes it a step further by using the mouse only for free movement and the keyboard to move units. It comes with built-in keyboard and mouse support, and the stock controllers I tried worked without any issues. However, I can't help but think you would have better control with a device with some more significant weight. Maybe one that's a bit heavier and slung over your shoulder, although that would make the game a little awkward to play when in the dropship. As previously mentioned, STOORM lets you play as Germany, France, Serbia, Italy and the three Austro-Hungarian Empires. This fourth empire is an interesting one, but I would have liked to have been able to play as the Russians. In the demo version you get a good glimpse at a Russian tech tree and their previous wars. The gameplay in STOORM is very simple, as it's a mix of Civilization V and Company of Heroes in a single game world and single player campaign. What I like about the game the most is the fact that Many, many monkeys love to jump on high rocks that are 100 feet above the ground. They do this every day, waiting for you to get up there to get eaten by them. You find the best climbers in the world, who also love jumping on the rocks. The best climbers are paid more, so you've got to climb to earn those high paying wages. There are like 10,000 monkeys around the place. You can jump on as many rocks as you want, but you only get 1 trophy per rock. So be careful not to get eaten while climbing! Or better yet, don't climb! There is no time limit, so you can climb as much as you want. This can be repeated 10 times for each monkey. Each time you climb, you unlock the next monkey's egg (there are 10 eggs). But to unlock all 10 eggs, you need to climb 10,000 times. Improve your climbing skills to unlock new achievements, each one unlocked when you earn that specific monkey's egg. I love this game it is so funny and very entertaining with a beginning to end storyline. Cons: The game is addicting but it can be frustrating because it often does not give you a clear success message if it achieved your goal. No attempt to the community Features New enemies Different enemies with different behaviors and tactics Every enemy has his/her own particular abilities (Tactics) Klondike Version 0.1.0 Publisher: Developer: Unlockables Easter Egg Features 4,200 unlockable achievements Latest patch Unlocked all achievements More achievements in coming updates No time limit Unlock all achievements with minimum level Game updates are free Global leaderboards Future trading cards Gameplay Arrow keys to move, shift to sprint, and spacebar to toggle the flashlight. Klondike is a game where you hold the rope, and some monkeys hold the gold! There are like 4,200 monkeys around the place. You can hand them the gold and send them to the different places with different levels of difficulty, so that they can get it faster. What's new in The Incredible Adventures Of Van Helsing II - OST:

for Dead or Alive 5 Last Round. I'll post a couple of pics. I'm going to try to sew one next Sunday, and if I have time I'll post pics. A lil' tweaking will be required. My other idea is to decorate a Halloween costume. DH has found my avatar here. My intention is to dig out my dress/suit from last year, invest in a few new things, and make a revamp of the "fuzzy" look. We're planning on going to the Dead or Alive Halloween cruise in Melbourne, Australia, and I think it's a pretty high brow event. Mum was just telling me about the "furry/edgy" costume on pinset. I think I prefer the "furry" thing. It seems to capture what I'm going for. Thoughts? I took a Katsucon costume that my dad ordered back from Australia and basically took the fur and blood out of it and did some to the shirt. It was 7 bucks. Somewhat expensive for what ended up as a gypsy kind of thing but it fit the theme of my avatar and I don't think anyone would have questioned it. Of course I'll be borrowing 'Han' armor LOL Ha! As someone who's had to do a lot of upcycling, I can tell you that beading, specifically, is a LOT of fun and easily repurposed and re-done if need be. There are some things that'll never go back in the style category (gas station toilets for example), but most, if not all, things with an industrial hookback style, rivet, button, etc are all doable. Vintage necklaces will of course take endless patience and years of access to, but I love mine. I have two, one over each shoulder, and there's the long one hanging as a necklace. My second one is vintage ribbon, colored with markers, and it's a replica of the one I wore all through my youth. Which I made for another Katsu. Hi all! I just wanted to say hello, and to wish you all a wonderful day! Onward Party Warriors, Grymm, Crystal and Mewina Wyvern, Pearls, Tux, and Delia Fat Princess is STILL wearing the same dress for obvious reasons. The sword has been detented for a moment in the interests of modernity.
