We are proud to announce our new website and fundraising effort to benefit The Cancer Institute of the Kings County Medical Center (CKCC). Our new website includes a modified version of our old website, and adds new information about us, our mission, and our fundraising efforts. The website is being designed and developed by our webmaster Phil Heilman. Please take a look around and browse our new website. We invite your feedback. What is the Mission of The Cancer Institute of The Kings County Medical Center? The mission of the Cancer Institute of The Kings County Medical Center (CKCC) is to eliminate cancer as a major cause of death and suffering in our community. What does that mean? CKCC has made remarkable progress in preventing, detecting, and treating cancer. Through research and discovery and through the patient care provided by our medical staff and their teams, we are making progress. We also have extraordinary patient care centers and a new groundbreaking cancer treatment center, The Kings County Hospital Cancer Center (KCHCC). More information is available on our new website. What is a need? Cancer is the second leading cause of death in the United States, and most of the year our organizations are working to help reduce this toll. We are committed to supporting local, national and international efforts to reduce the incidence, spread, and mortality of cancer. What is a donor? A donor is a person who makes an outright gift to The Cancer Institute of The Kings County Medical Center. Donations are one of the most powerful forces for good that we know. Your gift can help bring up a cause that needs our urgent attention. You can make a difference in a life. The Cancer Institute of The Kings County Medical Center. It is the seventh game in the Total War series, and the first to be released on a different platform than Windows PC. Total War: Three Kingdoms allows players to select from one of two factions to fight for control of the civilised parts of China during the Three Kingdoms period, either the Northern Wei, Southern Han, or Eastern Wu. The factions and campaign options in the game are similar to the Total War strategy games, with a particular focus on real-time gameplay, resource management, and statistics. In Total War: Three Kingdoms, players can play as one of the five ancient Chinese factions during the Three Kingdoms period, all trying to establish their own kingdom in China. The playable factions are the Han, Cao Wei, Shu Han, Eastern Wu, and Liu Bei, with the factions determined by which eight dynasties rise in China's history, the Five Dynasties and the Ten Kingdoms. The factions are, however, loosely historical, with the Eastern Wu forced to include Sun Jian, who founded Eastern Wu and would eventually split from the Liu family's Northern Wei. The playable faction in the game is labelled as the "Liu family" faction, with the in-game Liu family members all having an element of similarities to other real-life historical figures of the period, such as Sima Yi, Sima Yan, Sima Zhao, Liu Shan, Dong Zhuo, and Lu d0c515b9f4
