STALCRAFT is a joint project of SNOTEST.NET, GSC Game World, and Deep Silver. It is developed by a team of more than 30 players from the Russian world of Minecraft, and is currently in development for PC. The project is featured at the Microsoft E3 conference in June 2016. Chevron, Mu Sigma to work with the mayor's office The new mayor and his city are about to get a few hundred jobs and much more economic development. Chevron will spend $15 million to buy a stucco plant in Midland and will invest $10 million to create 700 jobs. Then there's the Mu Sigma $5 million expansion, the global supplier of the second-largest manufacturer of chemical pumps and equipment. The $11 million investment will mean 700 jobs. Chevron's Alabama investment project will be the largest such expansion by a corporation in state history. The city picked Mu Sigma after conducting a wide-ranging search of engineering firms, the mayor said. "We were really looking for a company with a reputation of quality and that could be here with us for decades to come," he said. "One of the big things we looked at was company size. Mu Sigma is the second-largest manufacturer in the world." Mayor Craig Lowe added: "The city's turning page and we're turning a new page. ... I am pleased that we've found companies who are engaged and ready to grow." Meantime, in a far less glamorous announcement, the city selected a marketing firm that will work with the mayor's office and the city on the annual Coosa Bash event in 2018 and 2019. The firm will handle public relations and other services for the event, which in recent years has become a full-fledged citywide festival. The firm will be named after the city's nickname: "the Magic City." Chevy Fields New Orleans LLC, a firm based in Kansas City, Mo., will be paid about $73,000 for the first year and $60,000 in the second year. City marketing director Julie Menard said the paid services will include filming for TV and web advertising, advertising venues and positioning for the event, social media content, bi-weekly meetings with the press office, regular public relations updates, general media relations and customer service.

Plus, a game that was a labour of love for its creator Tomoya Yamao. In his pitch he talks about the need for a more rewarding game and this is something that he wants to take on with his new project. I'm a big fan of Tomoya's projects and look forward to his new games. A game made with the game engine (2d pixel art), 8 Bit Universe. beat, that part is responsible for making the nexus to your host lives, It also allows for connection since VRP4Sixe is in array. Link to Setup Optional New version v3 Virtual media/arcade emulator for Sinclair Sinclair Spectrum Description This will be added to this gist when published. A virtual retro arcade for all models of Sinclair Sinclair Spectrums It allows you to watch and jump game tapes as well as play normal games from before the millions of Spectrums are produced. It also allows you to use the Voice Recorder to chat with the games, and it allows you to play games back on your speakers for full immersion Have a look at the console hopefully these will be published in the next few days. You will need to have a very fast 486 running the latest IIS/SSL combo, and it needs to have 256+ of RAM, and a pair of sound cards. It will be in the form of a HTML/CSS/JavaScript/PHP website, hence the two links to php files in my last post. V3.0.0 Version Testing/Staging/Shakedown Floating Point Finesse Description I promise this will not be hours long when it's over, it's going to be extremely simple to use, and I may have worked it into a hello world. Going to be very basic code. A simple try/catch where if the "no parameter" GET was given it redirects back to the page. That page then validates the user from "localhost" and redirects him or her back to the original page, with the information given in the GET given a valid user ID the user will be taken to a "v2" implementation. Less than 10 lines of code, but I need to re-implement the "devil" part of the base code, and get things installed online to be finally ready for it live. Also, I need to embed the simulation further into the site, possibly a new page. Your Chicago Dog Hides Behind Bars Couldn't Hide From The Dogs Chicago is famous for its deep dish, Chicago dogs, and lockjaw. Chicagoans are known to eat their hot dogs in lots

Q: Why did Bannen go to The Pit of the Dryads? The spellcrafter Bannen goes to The Pit of the Dryads on an adventure to kill a Dryad killing a fountain of life and get it's seal. What does going to the dryad temple actually accomplish? What part of "The Pit of the Dryads" does it help fulfill or whatever the quest is? Does going to the temple set up an ambush of some sort? He does seem a bit unfocused on his actions, serving as silent watchman one moment and brutally murdering some Dryads the next, but as far as I'm aware he
