A new game for your cellphone is always good, right? Your mission: rescue the Bear from a mysterious world on the Moon. Climb the mountains, explore caves and water, run, jump and climb! Collect the moons and fly all the way up to the Moon! Collect the stars and find a strange hole in the Moon! Find it for the Bear and rescue him in time for dinner! Use the moon and the stars to prepare your rescue strategy! Use the clouds and sun to help you navigate through the mysterious land! Use the train tracks to jump back and forth. There is a long journey ahead. ENJOY! Estimated downloading time for the iPhone game is about 20 minutes. The Android game takes a bit longer because it downloads a full version of the game.

----- The free version of the game has 10 levels, a maximum of 3 stars and a low bandwidth display. 17 Comments Matt Forter on May 11, 2011 at 6:48 am Great little game, a bit slow at first but, I think it's because the developers just need to add a bit more life to it, something that gets the player to move on to the next level. Right now, the game is a bit flat, I think if there was some more emphasis on it, it would be better. The overall gameplay is great, just needs a bit more depth and a bit more personality. This game is pretty cool. I have seen a few "has been" games lately that are fun, but Rescue Bear Operation is definitely a contender for top honors. The main concern I have is trying to save the bear, and not losing any of the fishies or sun gems I need. In short, I'd love to play this game more. Very addicting! I would play this more than a few times a day. I would recommend this if you want a game that is addicting, doesn't have a lot of moving parts, and is easy to get through. I would recommend it to anyone who likes games that are easy to play, quick paced, and have a nice cartoon-style. Curious to know if this will be another "Who's The Boss" game. I love being told I'm "tough" when it comes to playing games, but then I find a game like this that does pretty much the same thing and I just can't stop

What's new:

— a distributed coordination and synchronization software ZooKeeper is a high performance distributed coordination service providing high availability. ZooKeeper is even capable of catching up with and scaling with your applications and your cluster. Versioning ZooKeeper has gone through multiple major versions. The current version is v3.6.3 ZooKeeper provides extensive API and does not use and does not pretend to be "enterprise". And as the primary philosophy behind ZooKeeper is to provide a lightweight and free solution and server is the primary node for exchange of data that is managed efficiently, it is desired not to force too many visitors or things that slow down the UX. ZooKeeper is client-server architecture service. There are mainly two types of clients, Standalone and distributed. Type of Clients in ZooKeeper Standalone Client client standalone client distributed client Required Configuration To interact with ZooKeeper, you need a Zookeeper Service Discovery Servers Standalone clients can directly communicate with Zookeeper daemons without accessing a service discovery server. The stand-alone clients fetch the available servers in Zookeeper directly through client communication. A distributed client uses ZooKeeper protocols such as quorum-based probes to collect information about the existence of a zookeeper instance to enable a stand-alone client to discover this instance. 2. Address If you want to communicate with a ZooKeeper instance, you need its address. The address, in case of a standalone client, is published directly on each ZooKeeper instance. So you can access the ZooKeeper instance by its name. In distributed cases, distributed clients try to contact all the known Zookeeper instances through the Quorum-based Discovery and the election process. 3. Authentication The Zookeeper service requires a user's private key. The private key is protected by strong cryptography, e.g. RSA or Diffie-Hellman. Authentication is done using private, public or both of these keys. The key validation depends on client security library. For example, JDK version 1.8 and above supports RSAValidation JGSS API provides SASL-based cryptographic authentication

Now that the Iron Curtain is down and the Cold War is but a distant memory, two superpowers live in proximity and share a common border. The United States of America, also known simply as America, is the second largest and most powerful of the three united states, which also include Canada and Mexico. The Soviet Union, also known as the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, is the primary rival of America and was previously the second largest of the three superpowers. It was formed in 1922 after the breakup of the Russian Empire. The Soviets, led by Joseph Stalin, hoped the fall of communism would bring the former USSR closer to the United States. Between 1947 and 1989, the two superpowers remained at odds; when the USSR did achieve financial stability in the 1980s, it embarked on a policy to expand its global reach, to the chagrin of the United States. The Cold War was a titanic struggle between two nations, the United States and the Soviet Union. When it formally began in 1947, the United States of America was the world's largest economic power and the United States had the highest per capita income of any country. The Soviet Union was in a similar economic position in 1951. Stalin won out, however, gaining dominance over the rest of the Communist bloc while mobilizing the Red Army and throwing more resources into the economy. At the same time the USSR instituted massive industrialization, creating the foundation for a strong military that eclipsed the United States. The Cold War was formally ended by the USSR's dissolution in the early 1990s, which resulted in the USSR's collapse and the loss of the Soviet/Russian empire. Gameplay: In Hearts of Iron IV, you will command the might of the Soviet Union and the United States of America in a turn-based grand strategy game. Conquer Europe, encircle your enemy, and bring their armies to their knees. Choose your leader carefully: Will it be the red-blooded American war heroes like Eisenhower, Patton or MacArthur, or the quiet but brutal Stanislav Petrov? Similar to Europa Universalis IV, the Cold War focuses on Europe and North America. The United States and the Soviet Union remain the most powerful countries in the world. The United States is the second largest economy by nominal GDP (PPP), and largest by purchasing power parity. Unlike in Europa Universalis IV, which begins with Europe in the past, Hearts of Iron IV begins in 1936, with the United States and Soviet Union as the world's largest superpowers, and
