the PVI produced VIs which fluctuated with the outflow conditions simulated. The DVE calculated VIs which remained constant regardless of the outflow conditions simulated. It was concluded that the DVE is a useful tool for accurately and consistently identifying the potential impacts of outflow conditions on a water drainage system. Image copyright SPL Image caption Indigestion can be caused by eating too much for a particular time of the day If you eat too early, you may suffer indigestion and should avoid eating anything for at least three hours afterwards, say scientists. They believe the human body has a daily cycle of feeding patterns for various reasons and these patterns help regulate digestion. The timing of eating impacts on how well the body digests food, they said. Dr Claire Hargreaves from the University of Sheffield's department of medical genetics and food allergy will publish the findings on Wednesday. The research will be presented at the European Congress on Obesity in the Netherlands. After eating, some people experience indigestion, which can include vomiting. 'Gastric emptying' The body takes about three hours to empty the contents of the stomach in the "gastric emptying" process. You should avoid eating anything three hours after eating, because your body isn't going to empty the contents of the stomach fast enough. Dr Hargreaves, University of Sheffield Dr Hargreaves, from the University of Sheffield's department of medical genetics and food allergy, says there are a range of reasons why people eat too much in the wrong time.
