My professor gave a direct proof to the fact that $B(n,k)$ is connected (for $n \geq 2$ and $0 \leq k \leq n-1$) without use of prime graphs. I tried to prove it myself but I found that it is more laborious. I have already tried to prove this by contradiction. If we assume that there exists a connected graph G such that $G \subseteq B(n,k)$, then, I can't come up with a proof to the fact that G is connected. Moreover, we have the following picture to show that we can represent $B(n,k)$ by the union of two connected graphs $A(n,k)$ and $B(n,k) \setminus A(n,k)$: I have actually made my own pictures, but I don't know how to write them down. A: This is based on the solution by @Or there is nothing to prove for $k=0$ and for $k=n$ because $B(n,n) \cong K_n$. Let H be an induced subgraph of $B(n,k)$ with $|H|=k+1$. Since $B(n,k)$ is connected, there is a path between every pair of vertices of H . Choose $u \in V(H)$ and $v \in V(H) \setminus \{u\}$. We have that $v \in N(u)$ because H is an induced subgraph of $B(n,k)$. Let x be an arbitrary vertex of H distinct from u and v . We want to prove that $x \in N(u)$. Choose a path from u to x in H . That path has at least k

"Concordance" between hepatitis B surface antigen (HBsAg) and hepatitis C virus (HCV)-antibody testing (anti-HCV) is claimed to be a useful marker for predicting both chronic hepatitis B and hepatitis C. Our meta-analysis shows that the "concordance" between these tests is quite low (0.19-0.31). Concordant cases are defined as those who both test positive, while "nconcordant" cases are those who test negative on both tests. Results of tests done on the same specimen on the same day are more likely to be concordant than when done on separate samples separated by a long time period. Q: How to make a video from a web page viewable offline? I have recently launched a project where I want to show a video from a website viewable offline. I've seen some websites that do this by embedding the video and making it available offline. However, they all seem to have a video player embedded in the website which makes the video much harder to handle with the various media players from various browsers. 0cc13bf012
