ToledoVR, the cultural and educational destination of Toledo,

Spain, is one of the best virtual reality (VR) experiences in the world. The purpose of the project is to promote the city's cultural heritage and to expand tourism. Overview To fulfill these goals, we developed a VR application in early 2017 in collaboration with the organization of the city, The Virtual Toledo Experience (VerToledo). The application is an educational, adaptive VR experience that takes the user on a journey of 3D exploration of the historic center of Toledo. Both content and technological approaches have been developed for the enterprise's specific needs: The content is created by Visual Reality and adapted by programming and programming technology team of lisa studio Lab. Their work includes the creation of 3D models and animations based on historical documents, analysis and composition of photographic images and 3D reconstructions. This year, the company won an award at Lionsgate Los Angeles in virtual reality content production for the Otzi VR project and Casa Amelia in Panama. The technological approach is based on Unity, Unreal Engine 4 and Oni computer vision, with full support of any NVIDIA CUDA based platform. This allows us to detect, identify and follow any viewer with the GPU features of their computer system, just as they would with their mobile phone. Structure VerToledo is an experience with two main parts First is a virtual reality experience. A Mobile application with a single "explore" mode. The user can already get a 2D view, in which we use the smartphone camera and the device's GPS location to allow viewing the surroundings (for example, street maps, see the second screen). By pressing the VR button or tray on the main portal, we open the full experience, which can take place at any time, anytime at the historical center of Toledo. The objective of the application is to experience a VR tour of the historical center of Toledo, to look at the old part of the city, its grand monuments and historical points of interest. Second is a web application. Full of information about the city of Toledo and the places of interest that are also part of the VR experience. For example, the link to the next page or the search boxes in each location. Users can use the system anytime without the need to download updates and follow the path of the experience. The user must have a set of VR glasses provided by the
