This wood stove will be a single double burner stove and will have two ash racks on the stove to easily dispose of ashes with the stove on the ground making it hard to dispose of. This wood stove doesn't have a grate so the ashes will have to be tipped into the pit or dug into the earth so that water is drained from the ashes to keep the fire from travelling underneath the stove. The wood stove in this video measures 50cm high and 50cm wide and has a depth of 50cm. This wood stove requires 30kg of firewood to fuel it for one hour and the fireplace will have the grate removed. Enjoy the video and the model you build. The effects of sub-lethal doses of iodine (III) on thyroid follicular function, ROS production and antioxidant responses in live male rats.
