Older adults hospitalized with acute health events are at high risk for depression. Depression is both a cause and effect of inadequate self-care behaviors and is associated with increased risk of future health problems. The purpose of this pilot study was to evaluate the effectiveness of a nonpharmacologic intervention to improve depression severity in hospitalized older adults. A pilot study was conducted, involving 25 adults (mean age 76.6) who were admitted to an acute-care hospital ward. Interventions included an assessment tool to assess a patient's fall risk, an education session on falls and self-care, and provision of a fall mat. Depressive symptoms were assessed with the Geriatric Depression Scale-15 (GDS-15) immediately before and after the intervention. There was a significant group by time interaction on the GDS-15 scores (P=0.008). While the study was not powered to evaluate intervention effects, the results suggest that providing an education session on falls and self-care and providing a fall mat might reduce depressive symptoms in elderly patients who are hospitalized with acute health problems. Further studies are needed to confirm the findings of this pilot study and to determine the feasibility of implementing these intervention in inpatient settings.USS Partridge (AM-104) USS Partridge (AM-104) was an built for the United States Navy during the early 1930s. She was the only U.S. Navy ship to be named for the partridge. History Partridge (AM-104) was laid down on 14 November 1931 at Slidell, Louisiana, by the Gulf Shipbuilding Corporation, launched on 6 April 1933, and commissioned on 4 November 1933, Lieutenant (junior grade) William J. Snow in command. 1933-1935 After shakedown, Partridge departed New Orleans on 27 December 1933 for San Francisco, California. The unarmored submarine was laid up at the Mare Island Navy Yard. 1938 Partridge participated in fleet problems in the San Francisco area until the spring of 1938.
