X-COM has been a legend and a half for years, but now you're in the front line fighting the invasion. Years have passed since the alien attack, and human beings have almost completely recovered. However, mass disappearances are still being reported all over the country, and the military declares that the aliens are regrouping. The remaining forces of X-COM are scattered and have regrouped in the West Coast's country of California, in a large underground facility known as "The Place". They are there to protect the NSA's main headquarters in San Francisco. In this in-depth third-person shooter strategy game, you are at the heart of the X-COM agent. Since the invasion, you are the only remaining X-COM agent in the world, and this made you the elite "Enforcer". Enforcer is an all-action game, with an original twist. In fact, you will fight in a battlefield where the enemies, as well as your own allies and equipment, are artificial. The environment, your weapons, even your artificial body and hands are all manufactured from the best of the best extraterrestrial salvage. You'll use all your technological and combat experience to perform all your missions with extreme accuracy. Gameplay: - You can play campaign or mission mode - play as X-COM agents against the aliens, or as an alien to invade the Enforcer base. - Choose the missions that interest you best in your campaign mode: from simple field missions to urban warfare. - Enjoy the original and extended X-COM gameplay - with many new weapons, battle areas and support functions. - Discover countless missions through the never-ending story. - Go on a tour of the Enforcer base, and use it to your best advantage. - Time is of the essence in a time of war. Start your fights with maximum advantage. - Start missions in real time in mission mode. Start in real time in a free play mode. X-COM: Enforcer - Read Me ------------------------ X-COM: Enforcer - Alien Invasion ------------------------ == X-COM: Enforcer is a tactical/strategy game set during the war between human and alien civilizations. You play as a X-COM agent. You have been chosen by X-COM to bring this war to an end. Does this game look familiar?Has this game made your thumbs go too slow? Are you suffering from a gamer's burnout? Are you just tired of casual games? Pick this one up, and take a break from the norm!DayZ Standalone adds a whole new meaning to the term "sandbox".The mission is survival, like it's predecessor WarZ, however this one focuses more on the survival of humans rather than zombies. You are dropped on a plane and left to fend for yourself. You must scavenge for your own survival, grow crops, hunt animals, craft and defend yourself. The weapons are limited in number and scattered all over the map, and unless you are looking in the wrong place you will find little except rust.DayZ Standalone has been under active development for 4 months. It is still in alpha testing, and the release date is yet to be set.DayZ is also available for Xbox, Mac and Linux. ReviewsDayZ is the answer to the days of starving to death and just being left alone in the wild.7/10 JayIsGamesRemember When: Features its own campaign on Steam and carries a copy of the DayZ Mod for the survival game.Compatible with: Windows7/8/10 | MacOSX | Linux | XBoxOne | Playstation 4 | Playstation 3 | Xbox 360 | Wii U | Mobile | Facebook | Google Play | iOSQ: Sort a dataframe by rows first, then column The expected result should be this, +----+-------+-------+ | | | | | | A | B | | | B | A | +----+-------+-------+ Here is what I tried, from pandas import DataFrame data = [['A', 'C', 'E'], ['B', 'D', 'E'], ['C', 'D', 'F']] df = DataFrame(data=data, index=['row', 'col']) df.sort_values('row').sort_values('col') But it sorts the dataframe first by column and then by row. I want the reverse order. Any ideas? A: In your example you don't really need to sort the columns,

The Trip Troupe was a jazz big band organized and led by Buddy DeFranco in August 1939 during the late swing era. The lineup included Eddie Miller on trumpet, Joe Bonamassa on tenor saxophone, Jerome Gray on trombone, Eddie Heywood on clarinet, Herschel Evans on piano, Al Griffin on bass, Snookum Russell on drums and Tommy Mottola on baritone saxophone. The Trip Troupe belonged to the same period as the Dave Brubeck Quartet, and as another big band, both were associated with the. Formation DeFranco was dissatisfied with the musicians at his previous band, the DeFranco Septet and set out to find new ones to form a new band. He found Joe Bonamassa in New York and offered him a free plane ticket back to Los Angeles, California if he would get in touch with his brother, Art Bonamassa at a Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania address. Shortly thereafter, Art Bonamassa contacted his brother and both made arrangements to come out to Los Angeles. (Art and Eddie Miller were born brothers within six months of each other, yet their personalities were completely different. Art was well known as an excellent trombone player, teacher and arranger, and was one of the original members of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra. Not long after his move to Los Angeles, Art met Eddie Miller who was already a seasoned musician and leader of a big band. DeFranco put both brothers in his band until he formed a new band, the Trip Troupe). The first open concert was in May 1939 and was at Fletcher's Restaurant on Sunset Boulevard. Then, on 8 August, the first recording session occurred, resulting in the first release by the Trio with the help of Tom Mottola and Frank D'Annone. The first recording effort of the band was "Persian Love Song" by Billy Daniels. The first recording of the orchestra was "On a Winter's Night" by Billy Daniels, with Eddie Miller and Tommy Mottola on horns and an undisclosed string section. Eddie Heywood was not available that day, but was informed after the session had ended about a week later by Herschel. Eddie Miller assumed the role of lead alto saxophonist and played with the band for two years. Post-infancy The band name was changed to the Trip Troupe, Jerry Gray was brought in, and because Experiments have been carried out in rats on five different experimental models of aneurysm surgery to assess the role of vasospasm as an etiologic factor in hemorrhage from aneurysms. The aneurysms were studied in the basilar trunk (water-injected), the anterior cerebral (gold thrombin), and the posterior cerebral arteries (gel foam injection). Bleeding occurred during surgery in all but two of the animals, but the question of a causative relation between bleeding and vascular spasm could not be answered. However, the fact that hemorrhage occurred equally in the animals with and without vasospasm in the postoperative period and that no spasm appeared in non-operated arteries did support the hypothesis of a causative relation between bleeding and spasm. The cerebellar vascular bed was also studied. Spasm developed in 50% of the animals, but this was always associated with similar spasm in the main basilar artery and there was no correlation between spasm of the cerebellar circulation and spasm of the basilar artery. The role of all of these experimental models in predicting
