Q: Cant get the proper python syntax in my if statement I am trying to write a little program that asks you to enter a number, and if it is larger than the biggest of my already listed integers, it prints the biggest integer on the list. So far, I have written the following:

biggest = 0
if answer is not "done":
    a = raw_input("enter a number: ")
    if len(a) == 0 or a > biggest:
        print biggest

However, when I run it it gives me this error message: NameError: name 'biggest' is not defined I am using python3.4 by the way. Any help will be appreciated.

A: You need to define the biggest and call it inside your condition.

biggest = 0
if
```

answer is not "done": a = raw_input("enter a number: ") if len(a) == 0 or a > biggest: print biggest biggest = input(" 6d1f23a050
