The first is what most people will have done. This is the beginner level, where you are only teaching Java. The second level is the intermediate Java, which is where you have built a simple application with Java, taught it to someone else, or fixed a bug. The third level, your expert Java is where you're building a fancy application with a lot of custom code. As you learn more about Java and become more advanced in your work you will go up through levels 4, 5 and 6. Being an expert Java developer is reserved for the select few. As you progress through these different levels of coding you may want to save yourself some time and consider paying a salary to someone who is already skilled in Java. Here we go through the five levels of coding: Beginner Intermediate Expert

Specialist Superhero Beginner The beginner level is all about learning how to program in Java. You must learn about the different topics listed in the parts of a program, as well as how to use them and test them. The first thing that you need to know is how to write a program. At this stage you will have been introduced to the basics of what a programming language is. You should understand the mechanics of a computer language. The programming language will need to be parsed to take a computer language and turn it into bits, bytes and eunums for the computer to read. It may sound complicated but it really is just math. 6d1f23a050
