as rockwell offers broad software compatibility, we've developed two different models of our windows pos for you to choose from. we're confident that our two windows pos models will help you cut down on space and time, plus keep your business running smoothly. you can select either the rsnetwork for windows (rsdw) or rslogix 5000 (rslk) model based on your business needs. both rockwell products are it is advisable to save a copy of your newly converted file as an acd or acl file in your controllogix library, you can then use this saved file to reload it if necessary. remember to close the connection graph after each conversion. it is advisable to use the 'save as' option for export and load, otherwise you may find that the first time you load the file (or convert back) the connection graph will not load. for example, on my system if i open a printer specified as a device connection file (eg. 'c:\rslogix\5000\devices\12345\ntp-12345.acd'), it will not load (in controllogix). i want to install the rslogix 5000 software onto my computer. when i go to the website, i find that i need a serial number and a cd key. i have the cd key, but i don't know what the serial number is. i think that it is on the cd that came with the software. how do i get the serial number for the software? this tutorial shows how to install rs logix 500. i have just 1 problem, i have a computer running windows vista and i have a software called softman, and the software i am trying to install is called rslogix 5000. the problem is i have no idea what the serial number is for the software and the cd key i have is for the software i am trying to install.
