diamond engagement ring goes on sale. The ring will be chosen by the boy's dad, Mark Cohen, who plans to pay for it out of his own pocket, according to a company spokesman.
The ring, called the Eye of Persia, is a sharp diamond with a pearl setting surrounded by 40 black onyx stones. It's a gift from the father of the bride to the bridegroom. Ms. Cohen said she wore a large diamond ring during her engagement last year to Ryan Reynolds, the actor. It's the only piece of jewelry she's owned since she was 14, when her mother gave her a gold wedding band. She said the wedding ring was a “collection piece,” and she began to wear the ring only for specific occasions. She also has a set of platinum earrings. A hoop in her ear “makes me look like I have a carton of milk in my ear,” she said. Her father buys her jewelry for her birthday, Christmas and when she has an anniversary. “I just think the idea of her not having the ring and him having to wait for her to be engaged to him and the whole thing in the past,” she said, “it’s like: ‘I want to save her from this in the future and just make it a part of our lives before we get married.’”

Colombian-Spanish playwright Marta Garcia Blaya is quick to call herself a Spanish writer, even though “every script I write is translated”. She traces her literary lineage to Ibsen in Sweden, French (Marguerite Duras’s The Lover, a key influence) and American (Barbara Visser) and, more recently, British (Caryl Phillips). 5ec8ef588b
