we're still in its early stages, but we'd love to hear your feedback and suggestions as we move forward. after all, is it worth a programmer's time to go back to a project and do it the way i want it to be done. step 3 - change your focus to the drawing's active window and then delete it. with the help of these simple functions you can set the launcher to display the applications you want it to and organize it in a way that makes sense to you. hi. but most of all this has made my experience feel invaluable. i have completed master degree and have got so much knowledge after i have completed it. i have completed to my liking. william mcinerney (1881–1938) was a politician from alberta, canada and a municipal councillor in edmonton. biography political career mcinerney first ran for a seat on edmonton city council in the 1913 municipal election, finishing in second place in a field of three candidates. he finished fourth in the 1914 election, and fourth in both the 1917 and the 1920 elections. he was seventh in the 1917 election, first in the 1920 election, and was the second candidate on the anti-world war i vote in the 1923 election (tied with robert james rankin). he did not run for re-election in the 1925 election. municipal service mcinerney was elected to the edmonton town council in the 1918 municipal election. he was a member of the civic improvement commission from 1920 to 1922, and served as its chairman from 1921 to 1922. he was one of the seven members that elected michael moynihan, a socialist, as edmonton's first aldermanic representative (the other six councillors were all members of the liberal party). mcinerney, along with moynihan, was a member of the liberal party and, in the 1927 election, led the group of five liberals to win back the mayoralty. he returned to council in 1931. mcinerney was also a member of the w.c.t.u. death mcinerney died on october 12, 1938. he is interred in the holy family cemetery in edmonton. references scanning electron microscopy and x-ray diffraction analyses of the natural minerals in the sandstone from the aguas calientes formations, cundinamarca region, colombian andes. the sandstones from the aguas calientes formations in cundinamarca region, colombia, are characterized by a fine-grained matrix with a variety of mineral particles. the mineralogy and petrology of four samples from the aguas calientes formations, collected at a depth of between 500 and 750 m, were determined by electron microscopy and x-ray diffraction. the samples were selected according to a hierarchical sampling grid that is being used in a world-wide project on the geochemistry of the weathering products of a deep karst aquifer. the samples are analyzed by scanning electron microscopy, energy dispersive x-ray analysis and powder x-ray diffraction (xrd). the samples consist of sandstones with angular structures in the fine-grained matrix, and with fine grains of calcite, gypsum, aragonite, quartz, illite, chlorite, and the silicate polymorphs of the group feldspar, biotite, and muscovite. the nature of the particles in the mineralized matrix and their mineral assemblage reflect the mineralogical and chemical heterogeneity of karstified systems. feldspars, muscovites, and chlorite are major components of the fine-grained matrix, whereas calcite is predominant in the intercrystalline minerals.
