The official title is Inazuma Eleven GO and it was released worldwide on February 1st, 2018. Players can also play this Inazuma Eleven GO as free download. Recently, the Hokkaido Shounen Club announced a series of national exams that will determine one's possibility of becoming a member of the Hokkaido Shounen Club, one of the eight soccer clubs in the Inazuma Eleven series. These exams include: Character Design (4 categories), Chooses Soccer (2), Sportsmanship (3), Personality (3), and a series of exams to grade the student's interest in soccer. The official website for the third installment of the Inazuma Eleven series has been updated with information about the game to be released this winter. There are also some screenshots of new characters and some info about the game's story. The first character promo for the game was released by Dengeki Daioh which included an announcement that a new development is about to start for the third installment of the series. SEGA has announced that a new campaign will be added with new characters and mechanics to the game. The new campaign mode will focus on the Tokyo Olympics in 2012, also known as the Olympic Inazuma Eleven. The story will continue where Tokyo 2012 ended.

However, the "Chronicle

Mode" mode was not included in the original release of the game. The game was released "only with the character creation mode", featuring seven playable characters, and three difficulty levels. Back in Inazuma Eleven Go's announce, the number of playable characters will be increased from seven to twelve in a future update, with the option to play with three or four on the field at the same time. This gives the original three game modes continued relevance, and is similar to how Inazuma Eleven: Road to Victory handled this. But that is something for the future. Inazuma Eleven Go is a successor of the popular Inazuma Eleven 2-3 series for the Nintendo DS and PlayStation Portable which took place in Japan. In the series, the player would play as the "Chronicles of the God Arcadia", an aspiring football player named Seiran Tenma, as he tries to reach the Top Eleven club, making it to the first division, with his cohorts Kamiko Nozaki, Rikako Aisaka and others. The English name for the game is also known.

"Inazuma Eleven Go" was chosen by Hino as "a more simple, fun name that evokes "Inazuma" without being too competitive". He also commented on the game's differences to its predecessor: "Inazuma Eleven Go is a more competitive, fast paced version of Inazuma Eleven". Hino has also stated he wanted a "harder core of characters" to see how players react to them, which makes this the first time in the series where you can use the characters from multiple titles. One of the most famous characters in the series, Zai, a former striker of Hino's alma mater Yokohama Nikkyu, has been selected as one of the twelve playable characters. Along with him being a striker, he is considered to be the toughest of the eleven original characters. It was also reported that a female character would be in the game, although she has not been specified at this time.
