though the film claims to be based on facts, the only official version of the sinking of the ghazi is that it was destroyed by indian forces under the command of captain inder singh. the film is the story of the bravery and valour of captain inder singh and his team, and their efforts to save the crew of pns ghazi. the film is based on a real incident which took place on november 22, 1971, when the pakistani submarine pns ghazi ventured into indian waters with the motive of sinking indian naval ship ins vikrant. the pakistani submarine, which was supposedly on a mission to destroy the indian aircraft carrier, had already successfully destroyed indian naval ship ins khukri earlier in the day. the film, based on the sinking of the pakistani submarine, is scheduled to hit the screens on november 7. starring rana daggubati as the lead, the film will also have amitabh bachchan voicing for the hindi version. the ghazi attack is directed by sankalp reddy. it is the first of the famous three-day naval battle between the indian and pakistani navies, which saw the loss of ins vikrant, the loss of more than a thousand pakistani sailors, and the sinking of the pakistani submarine ghazi. this film captures the events in the same way they actually happened, with no glamorization or the use of special effects. the film depicts in detail the top-secret mission of pns ghazi to destroy ins vikrant. the strength of the film lies in the fact that it focusses on the realisation of the mission carried out by commander daggubati. daggubati, who hails from andhra pradesh, recalls his childhood where he used to play with toy guns and submarines. the scene is almost similar to the childhood of the film director sankalp reddy, where he too used to play with toy soldiers and submarines.
