PATCHED Sam Broadcaster V3.2.2 Serial MySQL.4 EXCLUSIVE

Note that for split Sam Broadcaster cannot supply the grouping key in the snapshot. However, if the base of the data dictionary is an approximate value for the sampling engine, and the base of the data dictionary is not the actual base of the event table, Sam Broadcaster can supply the expected primary key. Note that Sam Broadcaster must select the snapshot for the primary key using the ROW_COMPARISON and ROLLBACK_ON_ERROR parameters, and must also supply the expected primary key. These parameters are not optional, and not all databases will handle the ROW_COMPARISON parameter. For join Sam Broadcaster must supply the expected primary key, and also supply the expected primary key if the base of the data dictionary is an approximate value for the sampling engine. If the base of the data dictionary is an exact value for the sampling engine, Sam Broadcaster can skip supplying the expected primary key, but cannot guarantee that this will not produce stream IDs that have been re-used in a lower replica. The ROW_COMPARISON parameter can be used to supply the expected primary key if this is not provided (this parameter is not optional). This parameter is not guaranteed to work, and some databases will handle the ROW_COMPARISON parameter. you can now configure sam broadcaster to detect schema changes at the database server side, by using the new parameters schemanamesynchronizationenabled and schemanamesynchronizationtimemilliseconds, defined in the class definition.
