February 26, 2015 | Sound code for DTS. E-NOISE Productions in São Paulo, Brazil uses Neyrinck SoundCode For Dolby Digital to encode DVDs. If you're familiar with Neyrinck, you've probably heard of his work at Dolby Laboratories. His latest product is the Neyrinck SoundCode For Dolby Digital. This is nothing but the "beep code" for DTS. This is a code that you can install to decode DTS video and music from a file without knowing that they are encoded in this way. This code can be used as part of a program that encodes or decodes DTS audio. I myself have used this program on my system.
