If you are using/have used or are going to use www.wippler.com for paypal transactions you have got to know the limitations of that service. Well, I have been using www.paypal.com for 2 years now and I still had to deal with the same headache. It takes a long time to be accepted into the system. So, I have decided to make the most of my skills and develop a web service of my own. This service will enable you to send money to anyone you wish, you just have to log on to your account and send them the money that you wish to transfer. If you don't have an account then you don't need to worry! You can sign up for FREE! How does it work? 1. You login to your account. 2. You will be greeted by a new page. You will be greeted by a new page where you can enter an ID number or email address. You can also enter the amount you wish to send the person that you wish to send the money to. 3. You will then be taken to a new page where you will see the person's name or email address and they will also be able to send you a message as well if they wish to. 4. You enter the code that was sent to you (This will confirm that the payment has been received.) 5. You can then send the money to the person that you wish to. Advantages: 1. It is fast and reliable. 2. You will only pay for the amount that you send. 3. You will not need a credit card. 4. You will not need to send your email address. 5. It is an easy service to use. 6. No additional fees. 7. You will have the complete control of your account. DISCLOSURE: I am not receiving any financial benefits from this service. The money that you send will be converted to an amount that I will be able to pay out to the person that you are sending the money to. WHAT I AM RECEIVING: I am receiving a very nice amount of positive feedback from people who have used my service. I am also receiving some negative feedback. Most of the negative feedback is from people who used the service to send money to someone that they had not agreed with. Remember that if you send someone money without agreeing with them, then they are not obliged to pay you back.

What's New In PageLock Website Copy Protection?

PageLock Website Copy Protection is a piece of software designed to provide users with the possibility to easily secure the HTML code of their websites so as to prevent any theft attempts. Very simple interface The application has been built with a very simple and easy-to-use interface, based on the idea of “what you see is what you get.” Designed in the form of a wizard, the tool provides users with the possibility to secure a website's code with only a few mouse clicks. With the help of this program, users can encode HTML websites so as to prevent mouse right-clicks, text selection, or drag-and-drop functions. Moreover, the tool can prevent users from reading the source code of a website, thus ensuring that it can not be copied or stolen. Added physical protection Right from the start, the utility allows users to select whether they want to protect only a web page or an entire website, while also allowing them to choose what actions should be blocked in the browser. With the help of this tool, users can protect the entire folder of a website, while also being able to encode it in a manner than makes it difficult to copy it. However, the contents of the site can still be displayed in web browsers, without disruption. Fast operations During our testing, we noticed that the application can deliver fast performance capabilities, though that it is influenced by the size of the web page or website. One thing that users should keep in mind is that some of the copy-protection options could be dependent on the browser that is being used. A powerful tool All in all, PageLock Website Copy Protection is a simple yet powerful application designed to help users secure their website's code from being copied or stolen. The utility is very light on system resources, while its intuitive interface makes it suitable even for beginners.
