Windows 8/8.1/10/XP/Vista.Q: Efficiently writing to multiple files in C I would like to know if there's an efficient way of writing to multiple files in C, both in terms of RAM usage and speed. I wrote a program that allocates a text document and writes a few phrases. Obviously when I use the function fwrite() it reads and writes everything to the end. I'm not allowed to use fseek, ftell, fflush, fclose and fopen. I have to write the text using whatever I can. If anyone can suggest any other functions that would be useful, I'd be really grateful :) Thanks. A: You can use a single output file and a single input file. In the process, the input file will seek to the beginning of the output file after every newline. & 0.6$ \pm $0.1 & ... & $-0.1 & $-0.6$ \pm $0.1 \ & 1409.595 & $-0.6$ \pm $0.4 & ... & +0.2 & $-0.6$ \pm $0.1 \ S/
