The report, released this week, notes that data collected by the National Urban League shows that black males were killed by police in, on average, more than twice as many cases as white males during the period from 2004 to 2010. In 2010, a total of 201 black males were killed by police, compared to 80 white males, according to the report. Black men represent about 1 percent of the U.S. population. There are also an increasing number of charges each year of police misconduct, ranging from traffic stops to assaults and use of force. About 1, people are killed by U.S. police every year. In a statement, the American Civil Liberties Union, a national organization that provides legal representation to people in the United States and was among the groups that filed the suit, said, "When they are trying to exercise their most basic of rights, we have a long way to go. The civil suit states that Michael Bello had legal counsel with his parents when he was arrested on Feb. A nationwide survey conducted last year by the Pew Research Center found that blacks were most likely to be stopped and stopped for longer periods of time while driving. There was also a discrepancy in the number of fatal police shootings between blacks and whites, the study states, with 35 percent of fatal police shootings of blacks being unintentional compared to 12 percent
